TERMS OF ADMISSION.

Evidence of possessing a good moral character is required of candidates for admission. Applicants for admission into the Department of Languages, must have been instructed in Reading and Spelling, in Colburn's First Lessons in Arithmetic, and in the Elements of Geography. For admission into the English Department, the requisitions are Colburn's First Lessons, English Grammar, and the Rudiments of Geography.

Students in either Department may be admitted to any advanced standing in the three years course, for which on examination they are found qualified.

Application for admission should be made at the beginning of the academical year; but persons qualified may be admitted at other times by permission of the Prudential Committee.
